Stars & Paints

The Project

Stars, photography, painting, performance.

The "Stars & Paints" Project

Actors, musicians, fashion designers: stars who live from grasping the moment, like the showmen of yesteryear. And the old-fashioned fairground attractions were also an inspiration for Werner Pawlok's "Stars & Paints" project: a painted background, head through the hole, photo.

Werner Pawlok has photographed over 100 celebrities in this way. The canvasses, all of them originals, are by the painter Peter Böck. The stars put their heads through the holes and are captured with a one of two worldwide existing 50x60 Polaroid cameras. From Dennis Hopper to Pedro Almodovar, from Cesar to Dizzie Gillespie...the cast is certainly star-studded.

The one-off nature of the Polaroid technique matches the individuality of the portrayed subjects. In the beginning two lorries served as mobile studio, taking Pawlok to fashion shows, concerts and film festivals. The stars came gladly. And often had their own special wishes.

Thierry Mugler, for example, made the holes in the canvas bigger to better display his biceps. Jean Paul Gaultier wanted to have the Paris postcards on the picture. Dizzy Gillespie freaked totally when he saw the "big camera" for the first time and called Werner a crazy German...

The result of 3 years work:

Over 100 stars, over 100 unusual one-off polaroids; all of them signed by the portrayed stars.

Facts:

size 83 / 113 cm Polaroid 50 x 60 (20x24")

all 100 portraits are signed by the celebrity

all 100 portraits are framed in natural wooden frame w. glas

all 100 portraits are stored in several flightcases
